A Family Guide to the World of LEGO®

Welcome to the world of LEGO, a unique and fascinating place where children's dreams become reality. Because whatever children can imagine, they can create with LEGO building bricks.

The first thing children do with a new LEGO set is snap two bricks together. Then they add another and another and quickly learn to build small, simple structures. And in time, as they gain experience and invent new ways to build and play, children become ready for larger and more complex sets.

Since no two children progress at exactly the same pace, only a parent can decide when a child is ready for the addition of a more challenging set. But as a child grows, the world of LEGO grows, too. All LEGO pieces fit together with all the other pieces in all the other sets, so the creative possibilities are endless.

But rather than just talk about it, let's look in on the Adams family and see some of the ways they enjoy their LEGO sets . . .

LEGO PreSchool

Recommended for boys and girls 18 months and up.

074 LEGO PreSchool

2-year-old Betty is learning the fundamentals of building and playing with her LEGO PreSchool set. And she's really enjoying herself too, having no problem at all. That's because all LEGO PreSchool blocks are made big, easy for small hands like Betty's to snap together and snap apart.

Most sets also contain wheeled-platforms to make a wagon, a car, anything that moves. And all LEGO PreSchool pieces fit together with regular LEGO bricks. So Betty can continue to enjoy her LEGO PreSchool set for years to come.

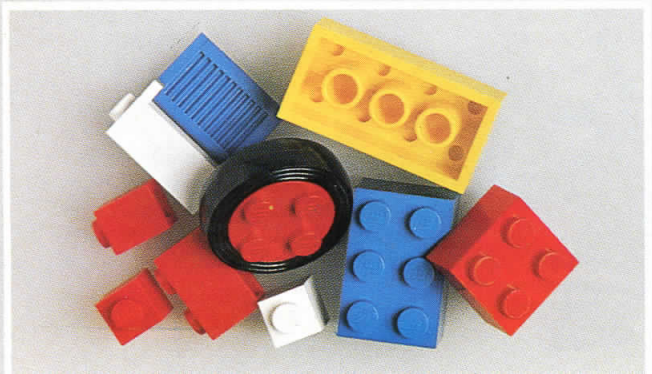
125 LEGO Building Set



There are 5 basic LEGO building sets. Each one has wheels and tires, doors that open and close, windows with shutters and lots of assorted building bricks - enough to build hundreds of different things. The larger sets contain more of everything and special pieces to make things even more realistic.

Karen and Tom each have a set and they often combine them. They get some very big ideas.

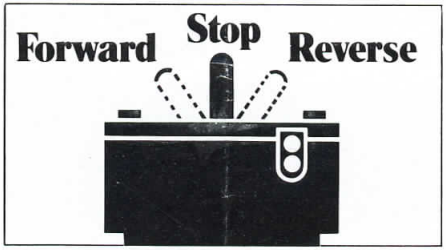
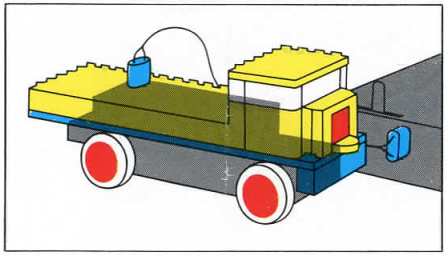
901 Universal Motor Set





LEGO Motor

With the LEGO motor, cars and trucks stop and go. Trains roll. Windmills spin around and around. Animals crawl. Even heavy-duty tractors can tread their way up inclines.

Special grooved tires, belt treads, and 3 different types of wheel sets make the new LEGO motor an exciting addition to any LEGO building set or model. Build it into whatever you're making.

It is shown here with a building set.

197 LEGO Building with People

Tom and Karen just got a LEGO building set with people and they've taken to it like ducks to water. Karen has already built a house and now she's making a family to live in it. Tom's going to design a plane with a cockpit for the pilot.

LEGO people make building more realistic. They've got heads that turn, movable arms, hats, and hairpieces. So they can be made into tall people, small people, funny people, all kinds of people.

LEGO Models

Everyone in the family has a favorite LEGO model. Janie's favorite is the fire truck. She likes the fact that it comes with Mini-Figures™. They're people that are scaled down to fit right onto the models. And they're brand new this year. Look for this mark *. It signifies the models that contain Mini-Figures.

* 425 Fork Lift

* 445 Police Units

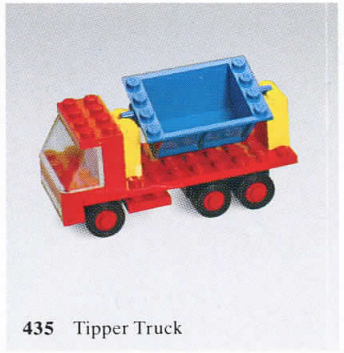
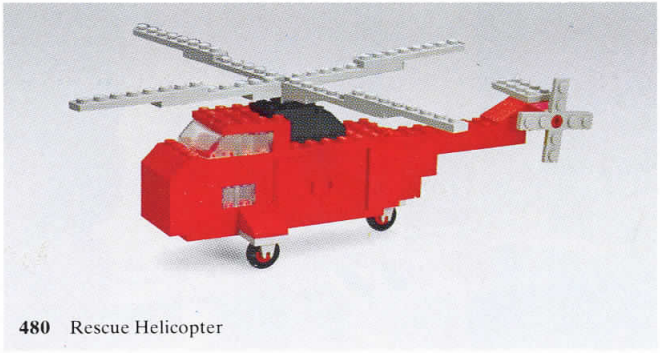
455 Learjet

430 Biplane



435 Tipper Truck



480 Rescue Helicopter

* 485 Fire Truck

490 Mobile Crane

710 Wrecker with Car

760 London Bus

730 Steam Shovel with Carrier

* 770 Rescue Set

780 Road Construction Set

Pete's putting together his favorite model, the road construction set. He enjoys the special treads and large-grooved tires that come with it.

All LEGO models have special pieces to make them more realistic. Plus none of them needs glue. So they can be rebuilt over and over again in a lot of neat and different ways.

* 550 Windmill

* 555 Hospital

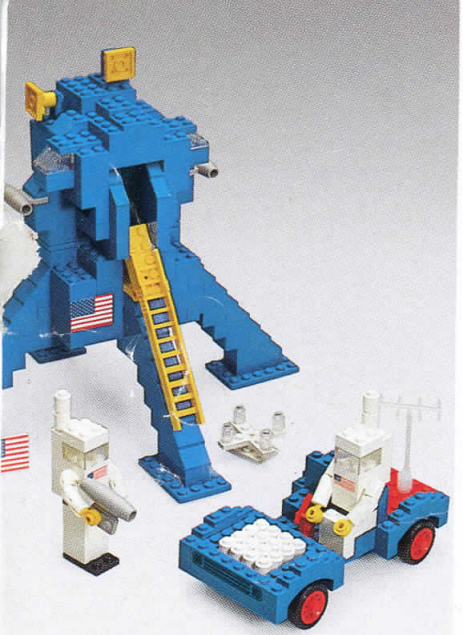
570 Fire House

580 Brick Yard

LEGO Enviro-Models™

LEGO Enviro-Models are something special - they're whole action scenes. And many of them come with people, too. The moon landing set that Hank is building comes with LEGO people complete with space helmets. While Janie's hospital set contains LEGO Mini-Figures. She can turn them into doctors, nurses, patients, stretcher-bearers, or whoever she wants.

All the Enviro-Models contain special pieces to make them more realistic and more fun.



565 Moon Landing

* 585 Police Headquarters

LEGO Idea Book

As you've seen, building with LEGO bricks is fun. It's easy to turn basic shapes into almost anything. For more ideas on what to make, send for your own LEGO Idea Book. It's full of things to build and ways to build them. Just send your name, address, and $1.75 to:
